

Dear FCC:

I am writing to ask of the FCC that they please exercise careful consideration before implementing any proposal that would lessen the protections I enjoy under the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. I do not favor any proposal that would diminish laws already in place in individual states that afford more privacy protection to citizens than would a Federal Law. Prior to the implementation of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law it was not uncommon for my household to receive 6 telephone solicitations in an evening. Now I rarely receive 1. This has been a wonderful thing. I work all day with ringing phones, and when I go home at night the last thing I want to hear is the phone ringing with an unsolicited telephone sales pitch. Again, please do not implement a proposal that would take away the protections afforded me by the Telephone Privacy Law of the state of Indiana.

Very Truly Yours,
Karen S. Wolfe
